James Caan and Samsung mentoring competition: The winner revealed

The recent competition to win mentoring from James Caan was one of the most popular we've ever run. We were inundated with entries from small business owners hoping to receive advice from the former Dragons' Den judge plus £2,000 worth of IT kit from Samsung. But there can only be one winner.

We are delighted to announce that the entrepreneur who will be mentored by is Shazia Mustafa, co-founder of Third Door.

Third Door, which Shazia set up with her husband Yusuf, is the first company in the UK to offer an integrated workspace with an OFSTED registered daycare nursery. The innovative business model enables parents to work at a location close to their home and reducing travel costs whilst their children are looked after onsite.

Commenting on her prize, which we gave away to mark the launch of Samsung's new black and white printer range, Mustafa said: "I am absolutely thrilled to win this prize for Third Door. A mentoring session with James Caan is such a great opportunity at this stage of the business as we look to expand and grow. Additionally, the Samsung kit will be invaluable in adding an edge to our offering in both the nursery and the workhub."

Dion Smith, general manager, Samsung UK Print Division, added: "Samsung is really looking forward to working with the team at Third Door. Third Door is a modern, ambitious, forward thinking company that offers its customers a flexible work space, at the heart of which lies technology. Samsung's technology enables people to work wherever they want with seamless connectivity so the synergies between our vision and their promise is clear.

"There's lots we can do to help develop Third Door's business; advising on the fundamentals such as great technology and the benefits of cloud services which can be utilised to create an overall vision of how future Third Door work spaces might develop around IT."

Shazia will be mentored on 27 February by James Caan and Dion Smith. BusinessZone.co.uk will be attending the session and recording it on video for publication on the website so all our members can get an insight into how mentoring works and learn from James Caan's expertise.

We will also be running a live webchat with Caan and Smith during which you can pose your own questions about your business.
